COLUMBUS STATUE BOUND TO AMERICA

Journeying this time not on the slow-sailing Santa Maria, but on the express steamship Rex, Christopher Columbus was out on the open Atlantic yesterday, westward bound to re-discover America.

"Glad to inform you," said a telegram from Antonio Grossardi, Italian consul-general in New York city, to Mayor Marvin yesterday, "that in conformity with my telegram of June 25, Columbus statue has been shipped three days ago on S. S. Rex, which will dock in New York July 18. With renewed assurances of my appreciation and my gratitude and looking forward to seeing you very soon."
